Bruce Pepperell, Regional Manager, Civil Defence Emergency Management, gave an oral report on the Wellington Lifelines group. A written report will be provided to the next meeting on the restoration times of lifelines in the region following a major earthquake.

7 Results of CDEM Group Plan workshops

Bruce Pepperell, Regional Manager, Civil Defence Emergency Management, spoke to the report and invited members to outline those strategic gaps in current CDEM structures and activities that warranted priority attention in the forthcoming Group Plan.

An in depth discussion followed where each member of the committee provided comment on the issues they considered to be a priority for the region, summarised as follows:

Community Resilience. Specifically increasing community engagement and building partnerships. Key components of this were considered to be volunteers, tapping into neighbourhood support networks and vulnerable community networks, increasing public education (addressing complacency and providing more information), and planning for when away from home;

Integrated Planning. Required with CD agencies and related partners, and should include integrated planning across local authorities, plus integration of/with council business units for planning and development (e.g. Community development);

Region wide risk reduction. There should be an all hazard approach to risk management; region wide agreement, coordination and cooperation on risk reduction; common terminology; and further discussion on the level of information to be included on LIM reports;

Enhanced Coordination. Required across all CD partners and stakeholders including Emergency Services;

Recovery. There should be greater community involvement in this aspect. Greater clarity is required on how we plan for recovery. We need to develop principles and processes for implementation when required and address resources from early in the response; and,

Scientific Information. There is a requirement to promote the full situation to the public in terms people can understand.
